

how Dare she?

guts over fear

Flexible

Contributor ^ Guidelines

(We encourage you to colour outside the lines)

How Dare She is a platform to celebrate women around the world doing extraordinary things. Not just hiking mountains, but moving them, not just driving rally cars, but parenting children thoughtfully, speaking truth without holding back, making a noise

Our aim is to deliver an ocean of stories to women - the women that need to read them from the women that need to tell them

If you have a story that must be told, we'd love you to write for us

how Dare she?

Story Guidelines

Stories should be around 400 – 1000 words and emailed to us in Word Doc format

Your story should be original content. We don't accept stories that have been posted on your blog or published on other platforms so, if you've told it a couple of times online, do a heavy edit for us

Stories do not need to follow traditional blog or article formats but must be carefully edited for spelling errors (as, unfortunately, stories with too many errors will not make the cut)

No pitching of your product or service is allowed

Sometimes articles are edited for length, grammar, content, style, and tone and in the case of significant changes, we will email you with a draft for your approval before publishing

how Dare she?

how Dare she?

Help Us Promote You

Fair trade - if we publish your story we'd love to see it splashed all over the interwebs - share it on your socials, in your emails, via your newsletter

So we can link back to your good self, send us your 100 word Bio, a headshot (no need for a professional photo, just a high res happy snap will do), and all social media and website links back to any sites you want to promote

How Dare She is very much a love-job. We don't make any money doing this (yet - wait for the merch to hit!) and so at this time, your story is shared by us for free, and shared by you with us for free

If you need professional copy coaching or copy editing of your story, get in touch. One of us is an award-winning copywriter, editor, and copy coach. The other is a critic that has written three novels and who makes good tea. We will be able to help

J + E

BEGIN.